About the Duo

Ravenwood performs melodies from the Celtic tradition on harp and flute, weaving the tunes of Ireland, Scotland, Wales, and Brittany into quiet tapestries of sound. Whether you are planning a wedding, a dinner party, or a concert, Ravenwood can lend a quiet elegance to any acoustic venue.

Biographical Info

Sean O'Malley - Sean has played flutes of various kinds since the age of nine. In addition to his collaboration with harp player Patrick McGee, Sean also performs for step dancers with the Ceili (pronounced KAY-lee) band Tessera.

Patrick McGee - Patrick has played the Celtic harp for upwards of twenty years. He also is a traditional storyteller and player of the melodeon, concertina, and Highland bagpipes.

What People are Saying about the CD "Ravenwood"

"... a quiet groove in the Celtic mode."

"[Ravenwood] transports us to a land of mists and valleys, a time of great loves and great losses, a world not quite our own."

"If you appreciate hearing melodies of timeless beauty played by a pair of musicians who know each other's styles inside and out, then Ravenwood is for you."

"[McGee and O'Malley's] rapport lends an understated elegance to the arrangements on Ravenwood."
